Expectations for Student Engagement in Ministry Practice with Field Site

The Field Education Program is more concerned about the quality of students' engagement, as defined by the Learning Objectives and rubric below, than with the number of hours students spend at their Field Sites. When creating Learning and Serving Covenant goals, students and Field Site Supervisors will discern how to integrate the Learning Objectives into the site's ministry context and identify accordingly expectations around when and how the student should be present and working. That said, because students are balancing Field Education with other curricular requirements, for extended placements (30 weeks) Site Supervisors should not ask students to work more than 10 hours per week as part of their Field Education requirement. For intensive placements (10 weeks), Site Supervisors should not ask students to work more than 34 hours per week as a part of their Field Education requirement. Students employed by their site must adhere to their employment contract when determining weekly hours.

Community and Contextual Analysis Assignments

In addition to their regular work at their Field Sites, throughout their placement and in their Peer Groups, students will have opportunities to develop concrete skills through analyzing the community contexts in which they are practicing ministry. These activities include tasks such as participant observation, interviews, power mapping, and asset mapping. Field Site Supervisors are asked to support students in these tasks by encouraging their members and constituents to participate when asked. More specific information will be shared during the Field Education Orientation and through the Moodle Course.

Peer Groups

Each student in Field Education will be assigned a Peer Group of six to eight students. Peer Groups meet sixteen times over the academic year (for extended placements) and ten times over the summer (for intensive summer placements), either in person or online. Peer Groups offer a time for critical theological reflection, vocational formation and discussion on students' placement experiences and ministry contexts in relationship to broader topics in ministry leadership and practice. Punctual attendance and active engagement in all Peer Group sessions is required for students' successful completion of the Field Education Program. Two or more absences from Peer Groups per semester for extended placements and two or more absences from Peer Groups for an intensive placement total is grounds for a failing grade. Students are also required to participate in three (two for intensive placements) one-on-one meetings with their Peer Group Facilitator, at the beginning, midpoint, and end of their placement (beginning and end for intensive placements).

Field Site Visit

Each Field Education student will receive a virtual or in-person visit from their Peer Group Facilitator (PGF) during their placement. The Peer Group Facilitator will observe the student in context and have a conversation with the student and Site Supervisor/Theological Reflection Mentor. Field Site visits are intended to be instructive and supportive. Plans for scheduling the visit will be initiated by the Peer Group Facilitator.

Field Site Supervisor and Theological Reflection Mentors

Site Supervisors and students will establish regular one-hour, one-on-one meetings at minimum twice per month for extended placement and once per week for intensive placements with the Field Education student specifically for theological reflection regarding the practice of ministry in context. These should be in addition to other supervisory meetings. If the Field Site Supervisor is not theologically trained, the student will also be assigned a Theological Reflection Mentor.

Basis for Course Grades

This course is pass/fail. To pass the course, the following requirements must be met:

- 1) Peer Group Attendance and Participation (based on Peer Group Facilitator Midyear and Final Assessments). Two or more absences (per semester for extended placements, and per course for intensive placements) are grounds for a failing grade.
